

Want to get behind the scenes of Underbelly Arts?

Part fringe festival, part band camp, Underbelly Arts 2011 is taking up residence on Cockatoo Island in July and features 150 artists specialising in performance, electronic and live music, new media, sculpture, theatre, sound and installation.

For two weeks artists experiment, rehearse, build, test and create an enormous range of work which will evolve and grow each day. The entire event is open to the public and audiences can both watch and be a part of the art making process. The 2 weeks conclude with one bumper celebration and presentation of the work created at our Festival day.

We're looking for a marketing intern to join our team for 1-2 days per week from now until mid July.

You'll be responsible for helping to write and upload content to our website, look after our social networking applications, and coordinate aspects of our blog and marketing campaign. It's a great opportunity to gain an insight into what goes on behind the scenes of a growing arts festival, and gain an insight into the creative process of up to 150 artists.

Ideally we're looking for someone who has strong web skills and experience in social networking and blogging.

If this sounds like you, please send a brief resume (1 page maximum) and/or examples of your work to emily@underbellyarts.com.au by 5pm Tuesday 26th May, 2011.
